Pleas Court. During arbitrations, the panel heard evidence, ruled on objections, and made decisions on civil cases referred by presiding judges. In 1989 I was selected by Summit County Common Pleas Judge Glen Morgan to serve as his judicial attorney. During that time I researched and drafted judicial rulings on all matters before the court. I also learned and handled the administrative duties of the court over the two years serving as a judicial attorney.

(2) What about your non-judicial legal experience qualifies you to be a judge?

Over the past 26 years I have practiced law as a trial attorney in criminal, civil, domestic and probate matters before most of the judges in Summit, Medina and Portage Counties. I have conducted approximately 50 jury trials, and countless evidentiary hearings over the course of my law practice. During that time, I have developed an extensive knowledge of the law, procedures, protocols, and administration of those courts. That knowledge has equipped me to understand and efficiently preside as a judge of the Summit County Common Pleas Court.

In addition, I am well known, and well respected as a trial attorney in the northeast Ohio area by the judges themselves, and my fellow attorneys. A judge also has a role in the efficient administration of the court resources and personnel. Knowing the judges who sit on the Summit County Common Pleas bench, along with most of the staff would assist me in being an effective judge.

(3) Why are you running for this particular court seat?

There is a long legal tradition (7 attorneys; 1 judge) in my family. I have been raised within it; have embraced it; and have thoroughly enjoyed it. My grandfather Tony Lombardi, served as a Common Pleas judge. I was drawn to the judicial role by my grandfather, whom I loved and admired. I had the privilege of serving as an Akron Municipal judge in 2015, and loved the position. I am running again to fulfill a dream, a calling, and to seek a position I respect and aspire to attain. Lastly, and most important, I am a man of faith, and fairness. I believe that our judiciary has a duty to provide the fair and efficient administration of justice to the citizens of the community. This is particularly true when today, it seems that many citizens are skeptical of the legal system. That reputation needs to change, and I wish to work toward that change.
