RE: Midyear Graduates Intending to Take the MPRE

The Multistate Professional Responsibility Examination will be administered on a slightly different schedule in 2013. Because of the schedule change, it would be prudent for any midyear graduates who have not already met the MPRE requirement and who are planning to take a February 2013 bar examination to register for the November 2012 MPRE.

In 2013 the three MPRE administration dates will be on the following Saturdays -- April 6, August 17, and November 2 -- with Sabbath testing on the following Mondays. The dates on which test results are scheduled to be released are May 10, September 20, and December 6, respectively. To the extent that you have midyear graduates who do not wish to have bar admission delayed in states that conduct admission ceremonies on or before the May 10 score release date, they would be well advised to register for the November 2012 MPRE. The registration deadline for that test is September 18, with late registrations accepted through October 4.

MPRE registration information is available on the NCBE website, www.ncbex.org. Please share this information with your law school personnel who counsel students about bar admission requirements.

Thanks and best wishes.
