We will use the field station for field outings. The field outings aim to expose students to the diversity of reptiles and amphibians living in the various habitats of Bath Nature Preserve and to teach a variety of techniques for capturing, handling, and identifying these animals. At times, various live-capture traps will be placed in Garden Pond, Hidden Pond, and Windhover Pond (Steiner Woods) for 1-2 days to capture turtles and amphibians. Cover boards may also be placed on the ground to create hiding places for snakes, which facilitates capturing these animals for identification.
